FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Idaho Forest Products Commission opens ICF fund

BOISE – The Idaho Forest Products Commission has started the Idaho Forest Foundation in the Idaho Community Foundation to support programs and projects that educate Idaho citizens about the state’s forests and forest products industry.

“The new Idaho Forest Foundation provides an easy way for people to support forest education and outreach projects that have a lasting impact right here in Idaho,” said Betty Munis, director of the Idaho Forest Products Commission. “Foundation funds will help us reach more people and provide more forest education programs throughout the state.”

The Idaho Forest Foundation was initiated thanks to seed monies designated by the Potlatch Corporation through the Intermountain Forest Association. Their generosity, as well as future donations, will enable the Foundation to provide grants of at least $250 to support projects and programs that educate Idaho’s citizens about our forests and forest products industry.

The Idaho Forest Products Commission collects and disseminates information regarding the state’s public and private forest lands and the forest products industry. It provides a variety of statewide communications activities, educational programs and informational materials to educate decision makers, educators, students and the general public about the need for proper forest management.

The Idaho Community Foundation is a public nonprofit organization that manages over 430 charitable funds on behalf of organizations, families, individuals and businesses. Each named fund has a designated purpose and distributes grants or scholarships to support its unique mission.
